Additional Sources of Learning

As we now have access to plenty of information, primarily on the Internet and digital space, it is important to identify and discern credible sources of knowledge, and to learn from them.

Good online sources of learning can come from digital magazines, online newspapers, email subscriptions, educational institutions, mentors, industry thought leaders/influencers, books, academic journals, etc.

Thus, creating a structured learning approach provides a disciplined and systematic plan, to build your knowledge and applications to your life project.
